

From AFC® Candidate to AFC® Professional – A Panel

Shane Robson-Smith, AFC®

Head Coach and Founder of Workplace Money Coach, Inc.

Shane Robson-Smith is an 8-year veteran of the financial coaching profession. Shane received his AFC® certification in December of 2021. Through his company, Workplace Money Coach, Shane provides financial wellness programming and coaching for employees.

He also teams up with financial professionals throughout the country that wish to facilitate the Living Paycheck to Purpose program he created and provides training courses for coaches to teach them how to grow their business in the corporate wellness world.

Jasmine Johnson, CB, AFC®

Jasmine works as an Accountant to several service-based businesses in the Atlanta area working mainly with entertainment clients.

Volunteering for nonprofits where she can provide youth and adults with financial literacy education comes just as natural.

Her passion for financial education and advocacy for mental health stems from childhood experiences and a desire to help others achieve their financial goals. Jasmine became an Accredited Financial Counselor® on January 7, 2022, however, she has been working as a Financial Coach for over 10 years helping many individuals in different income brackets achieve their financial goals through mindset shifts, compassion, and action.

From AFC® Candidate to AFC® Professional – A Panel

Ambus Hunter IV, AFC®

Ambus Hunter IV is a recovered problem gambler, coach, speaker, and online content creator. After becoming an AFC® in 2021, he recommitted his mission of helping millennials connect with their values, strengthen their relationships with money, and afford their desired life.

Through his private coaching practice and volunteer initiatives, he guides individuals and couples through financial transformations.